About EDM Producer Dexter

Dexter is an EDM DJ, Producer, Singer, and Songwriter out of Austin, Texas. Drawing his influence from across all genres of music, and blurring the lines of "traditional" EDM, Dexter's style and sound is a fresh new wave on the music scene. His country and rock inspirations from his early life as a musician, coupled with his love for EDM production, has transformed him into an artist that obliterates genre barriers, and creates music that is enjoyable for people of all backgrounds and preferences. Dexter's music can be summed up into just two words; "Good Vibes," in the sense that there is a song for every vibe, and it fits perfectly.

Dexter began producing music in 2018. He attended the Austin Dubstep Academy where he worked with local artists such as DJ Phoenix and MadHatter. He has since moved on from the Academy and has been in the studio with dubstep heavyweight BlvkSheep over the past year. Dexter's musical inspirations are rooted in Dubstep/Riddim and follow the harmonic bass sounds of Ganja White Night, Liquid Stranger, and Subtronics, but also the stylings of Texas artists such as Boombox Cartel and Riot Ten.

Dexter released "Head Bop" in 2019, a high-energy, bass filled jam that just surpassed 10,000 plays on SoundCloud and 14,000 streams on Spotify. Including "Head Bop," Dexter has 14 originals that he has released since 2018, and is currently working on more. Dexter can play a live set anywhere from 1-2 hours, containing 25% originals and 75% covers and remixes. Only thing Dexter needs to entertain and captivate an audience is CDJ's. Coming off the Emergence Festival in Denver, Colorado, Dexter is looking to make a name for himself with his unique sound and style.
